IMPORTANT INFORMATION

Care and protection of stainless steel surfaces

Your BBQ table was manufactured with stainless steel components. All grades of stainless steel require a certain amount of protection and care in order to preserve their appearance. Contrary to popular belief, stainless steel is not one hundred percent safe from rust and corrosion and is thus not maintenance-free. Even stainless steel grades of the highest quality require regular cleaning with fresh water to prevent oxidation and corrosion.

Without proper care, it is inevitable that signs of rust or corrosion will appear on the steel after some time.

Stainless steel is not a maintenance-free material. Cleanliness and stainless steel are closely interlinked.

After assembling the BBQ table, it is recommended that the user apply a thin film of olive oil with a clean cloth on all accessible surfaces with stainless steel.

The olive oil should be polished in afterwards and then wiped off with another clean cloth for a non-oily finish. This procedure serves to protect the material from dirt and other corrosive contaminants by applying a temporary food-safe protective shield.

The film of olive oil also serves to facilitate subsequent polishing, as well as the removal of fingerprints and the like. Repeat this process from time to time when cleaning your BBQ.

In order to maintain the quality of the Universal BBQ table for a long period of time, the owner should make sure to follow these care and maintenance instructions exactly.

Pay careful attention to your investment and it will serve you well for years.

Disposal

The packaging is made from environmentally friendly materials, which you can dispose of at your local recycling points.

Do not under any circumstance dispose of the BBQ in normal household waste! Dispose of it at an approved disposal business or at your community disposal facility. Respect the currently valid regulations. If in doubt, get in touch with your disposal facility.
